

ABSTRACT

A pressure sensor with a Bragg grating that may be particularly applicable to the chemical industry and for example includes an optical fiber and a Bragg grating formed in a portion of the fiber, submitted to pressure, and a lateral support of the portion. The portion is submitted to a compression prestress with a small value compared with a measurement range of the sensor.